South Vancouver Island Farmers Institute

The South Vancouver Island Farmers Institute is a dynamic group of food, fuel, fibre and floral producers, friends, and supporters. We are a local Institute founded and governed by farmers for farmers and community members who support agriculture and growing. Our activities are membership driven; we work to improve agricultural land stewardship and food security. We promote farming in the region through research, education, cooperation, and outreach.

Young Agrarians

Young Agrarians (YA) is a farmer-to-farmer educational resource network for new and young ecological, organic and regenerative farmers in Canada.

Are you a farmer seeking land? Are you a landholder interested in finding someone to farm your land? Check out the B.C. Land Matching Program at www.youngagrarians.org.

Haliburton Community Organic Farm

Haliburton Community Organic Farm is a publicly owned farm within the Agricultural Land Reserve (ALR) in the District of Saanich. The Farm is a community and educational certified organic farm that undertakes the following:

- Practices and promotes sustainable farming practices
- Involves the community in sustainable food production
- Supports a local sustainable food system
- Demonstrates the viability of small-scale farming
- Restores and enhances biodiversity within farming systems
- Demonstrates a cooperative community farming system
- Educates about agroecology
